Abstract

Storytelling is the defining constant in every culture, for our stories remind us who we are and what we value. In light of this fact, I chose to write a screenplay about a heroine named Aster, whose fear of the dark and quest for light mirror humanity's search for good. Through her journey across the land of Pelclair with her friends Rhys and Tago, Aster discovers that she has a higher calling on her life and must overcome great obstacles in order to save her sister and her kingdom. Drawing on my studies of great books and great films, I have written an epic adventure narrative with the hope of creating a work that will encourage people to pursue their own callings despite the darkness.
