Abstract

A textile company in Purworejo has a good relation with some foreign companies. By having foreign customers. English becomes a language to communicate. Unfortunately, this research showed the supervisors' speaking skill was lack, whereas they should handle their foreign customers. The aim of this research was designing a handbook to help them learning English speaking. The subject of this research was supervisors in PT. URW which is a textile company in Purworejo. The analysis data displayed that they needed a tool to help them learning English as well as learning without opening a screen. In designing an oral English handbook for supervisors in textile company, it was considered the theory of Hutchinson and Waters (2008), also ESP as its approach. Designing an oral English handbook for supervisors community helped them learning English speaking. It was proven by the score of 85% given by supervisors for the content quality and 92% given by expert judgments for the instructional quality. It meant the book was categorized into very good book. Meanwhile, the average score of the students was 75,5. Thus, it could be assumed the design of an oral English handbook for supervisor community was appropriate to be applied in learning English speaking for supervisors in textile company

The journal aims to promote research communications and provide a forum for researchers to find most recent advances in all areas of Textile Engineering. Advance Research in Textile Engineering accepts original research articles, reviews, mini reviews, case reports and rapid communication covering all aspects of Textile Engineering. Advance Research in Textile Engineering strongly supports the scientific up gradation and fortification in related scientific research community by enhancing access to peer reviewed scientific literary works. Austin Publishing Group brings universally peer reviewed This handbook is the ideal guide for all supervisors working with undergraduate and postgraduate non-native speaker students writing a thesis or dissertation in English as it explicitly unpacks thesis writing, using language that is accessible to research supervisors from any discipline. Discover the world's research. The supervisors' responses also reflected a supervisory relationship, marked by a high degree of structure. In the backdrop of these findings, the chapter advances the argument that the final year dissertation is a milestone in the English Studies License Programs. The results of a survey of the international community of scholars and professionals involved in the practice and study of doctoral education are reported.
