

An Annotated Bibliography of Biblical Studies and Theological Resources Potentially Useful to Business Scholars

Gregory Morrison

Abstract

The purpose of this annotated bibliography is to broaden the Christian business scholars' perspective when addressing biblical passages and theological ideas relevant to business practice by becoming more faithful interpreters of the Bible and having a greater command of Christian theology and ethics.

School of Biblical Studies and Theological Studies. School of Christ-Centered Counseling. School of Integrated Apologetics. Annotated bibliographies, especially those done by graduate and post-graduate students, need to do more than give a brief synopsis of the work's contents. They need to discuss – in a concise but substantive fashion – the entry's relative strengths and weakness, especially in comparison with the representative body of literature in the field. Your annotations should include the following elements. This source was a useful introduction to the topic and seems reliable, but was fairly short and very basic. Goodall is a well-known primate researcher and is passionate in her defense of primates, but did not present all points of the issue or counter arguments. 101 Books on Biblical Theology: an Annotated Bibliography is a free resource for those interested in learning more about how the diverse stories and themes of the Bible fit together. Goldsworthy's contribution to the study of biblical theology has been enormous. Here he offers methodological reflections on what biblical theology is and how to do it well. In particular, he stresses the importance of typology for reading the diverse sections of the Bible as a unified narrative (exemplified in his work below, According to Plan). Sources for Biblical and Theological Study 1. Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004. (560 pp.) "Annotated bibliography, like any bibliography is composed of an alphabetical list of all sources consulted in the process of carrying out research on a particular topic—in addition to this data, it demands for a brief summary of these sources". The summary should be based on not more than a hundred and fifty words and state concisely why you think the source used contains accurate, relevant and useful information. The reason why annotated bibliography is preferred over regular bibliography is that by giving a short description of the sources used, you are actually giving an impression to the
