Why Won’t You Just Tell Us the Answer?: Teaching Historical Thinking in Grades 7-12

By Bruce A Lesh

Stenhouse Publishers, United States, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 234 x 188 mm. Language: English. Brand New Book. Every major measure of students historical understanding since 1917 has demonstrated that students do not retain, understand, or enjoy their school experiences with history. Bruce Lesh believes that this is due to the way we teach history -- lecture and memorization. Over the last fifteen years, Bruce has refined a method of teaching history that mirrors the process used by historians, where students are taught to ask questions of evidence and develop historical explanations. And now in his new book Why Won’t You Just Tell Us the Answer? he shows teachers how to successfully implement his methods in the classroom. Students may think they want to be given the answer. Yet, when they are actively engaged in investigating the past - the way professional historians do - they find that history class is not about the boring memorization of names, dates, and facts. Instead, it’s challenging fun. Historical study that centers on a question, where students gather a variety of historical sources and then develop and defend their answers to that question, allows students to become actual historians immersed...

READ ONLINE
[ 4.11 MB ]

Reviews

This is actually the greatest pdf i have got go through until now. Indeed, it can be perform, nevertheless an amazing and interesting literature. Its been designed in an extremely simple way and is particularly only following i finished reading this ebook where really modified me, affect the way in my opinion.
-- Jacey Simonis

Absolutely essential study publication. It usually fails to expense an excessive amount of. Your lifestyle period will probably be transform when you full looking at this publication.
-- Ms. Allene Conroy
Students may think they want to be given the answer. Yet, when they are actively engaged in investigating the past—the way professional historians do—they find that history class is not about the boring memorization of names, dates, and facts. Instead, it's challenging fun. Historical study that centers on a question, where students gather a variety of historical sources and then develop and defend their answers to that question, allows students to become actual historians immersed in an interpretive study of the past. Each chapter focuses on a key concept in understanding history and then off Bruce A. Lesh. Teaching Historical Thinking In Grades 7–12, Stenhouse Publishers, Portland, Maine, USA (2011). 230 pp., Hardcover, US $17.17, ISBN-10: 1571108122, ISBN-13: 978-1571108128. Article in Journal of Social Studies Research 37(1):63–65 Â January 2013 with 224 Reads. The social studies classroom can and should be a place where students learn critical thinking skills, but too often, especially in the middle grades, students are asked to focus on discrete facts on which they can be tested. The purpose of this article is to suggest that sixth graders can learn the critical thinking skills of historical thinking by discussing big ideas and essential questions and to provide a framework for a middle school unit of study on Ancient Egypt.
This is a social studies pedagogy book for grades 7-12, and it discusses ways in which to incorporate the historical process into your classroom. I let you know some quick details from the book, and at the end, whether I think this is worth buying, borrowing, or passing on. If you enjoy this or find it helpful, don't forget to give this video a thumbs up and subscribe to my channel. I will have more social studies pedagogy book reviews coming in the future! If you are interested in this book, you can find it here: https://www.amazon.com/gp/product/157 You can also find me: IG: @history A outlining its history B describing why it has changed C explaining its popularity. 3 You hear part of a radio programme where listeners phone in with their opinions. What does the man want to do? A to complain about the traffic scheme B to express his support for the traffic scheme C to question the aims of the traffic scheme. 3 On the radio, you hear a woman talking about her house.